ORANGEVILLE SUN. THURSDAY OCTOBER 27TH. 1864.

STORM DATE. THURSDAY OCTOBER 6TH. 1864.

STORM IN ERIN:- A correspondent, writing from ERIN village, sends us the following:- This village and surrounding country was the scene of a fearful storm of thunder and lightning on the evening of the 6th. Dark and dismal clouds were seen in the west and northwest about sundown, and we could distinctly see the chain and fork lightning strike the earth in every direction. As it drew towards the village the wind increased until it became a tornado. Nearly every farmer in the upper part of the village had their fences blown down for a distance of 50 feet, and large trees were torn up by the roots on the farm of WILLIAM CORNOCK ESQ. During the storm a new stone house belonging to Mr. JOHN McLEAN, on the 9TH. CON. was struck by the electric fluid , but no damage was sustained by its inmates.
