Girl trapped

SHAWVILLE, Que. (CP) — Eleven-year-old Lynn Charbonneau stayed home from school today. She has laryngitis after hurricane-force winds Monday toppled part of a barn on to her father's car, trapping her inside.

The laryngitis is from screaming, said her father Jean-Paul Charbonneau, a farmer in this community 60 kilometres northwest of Hull.

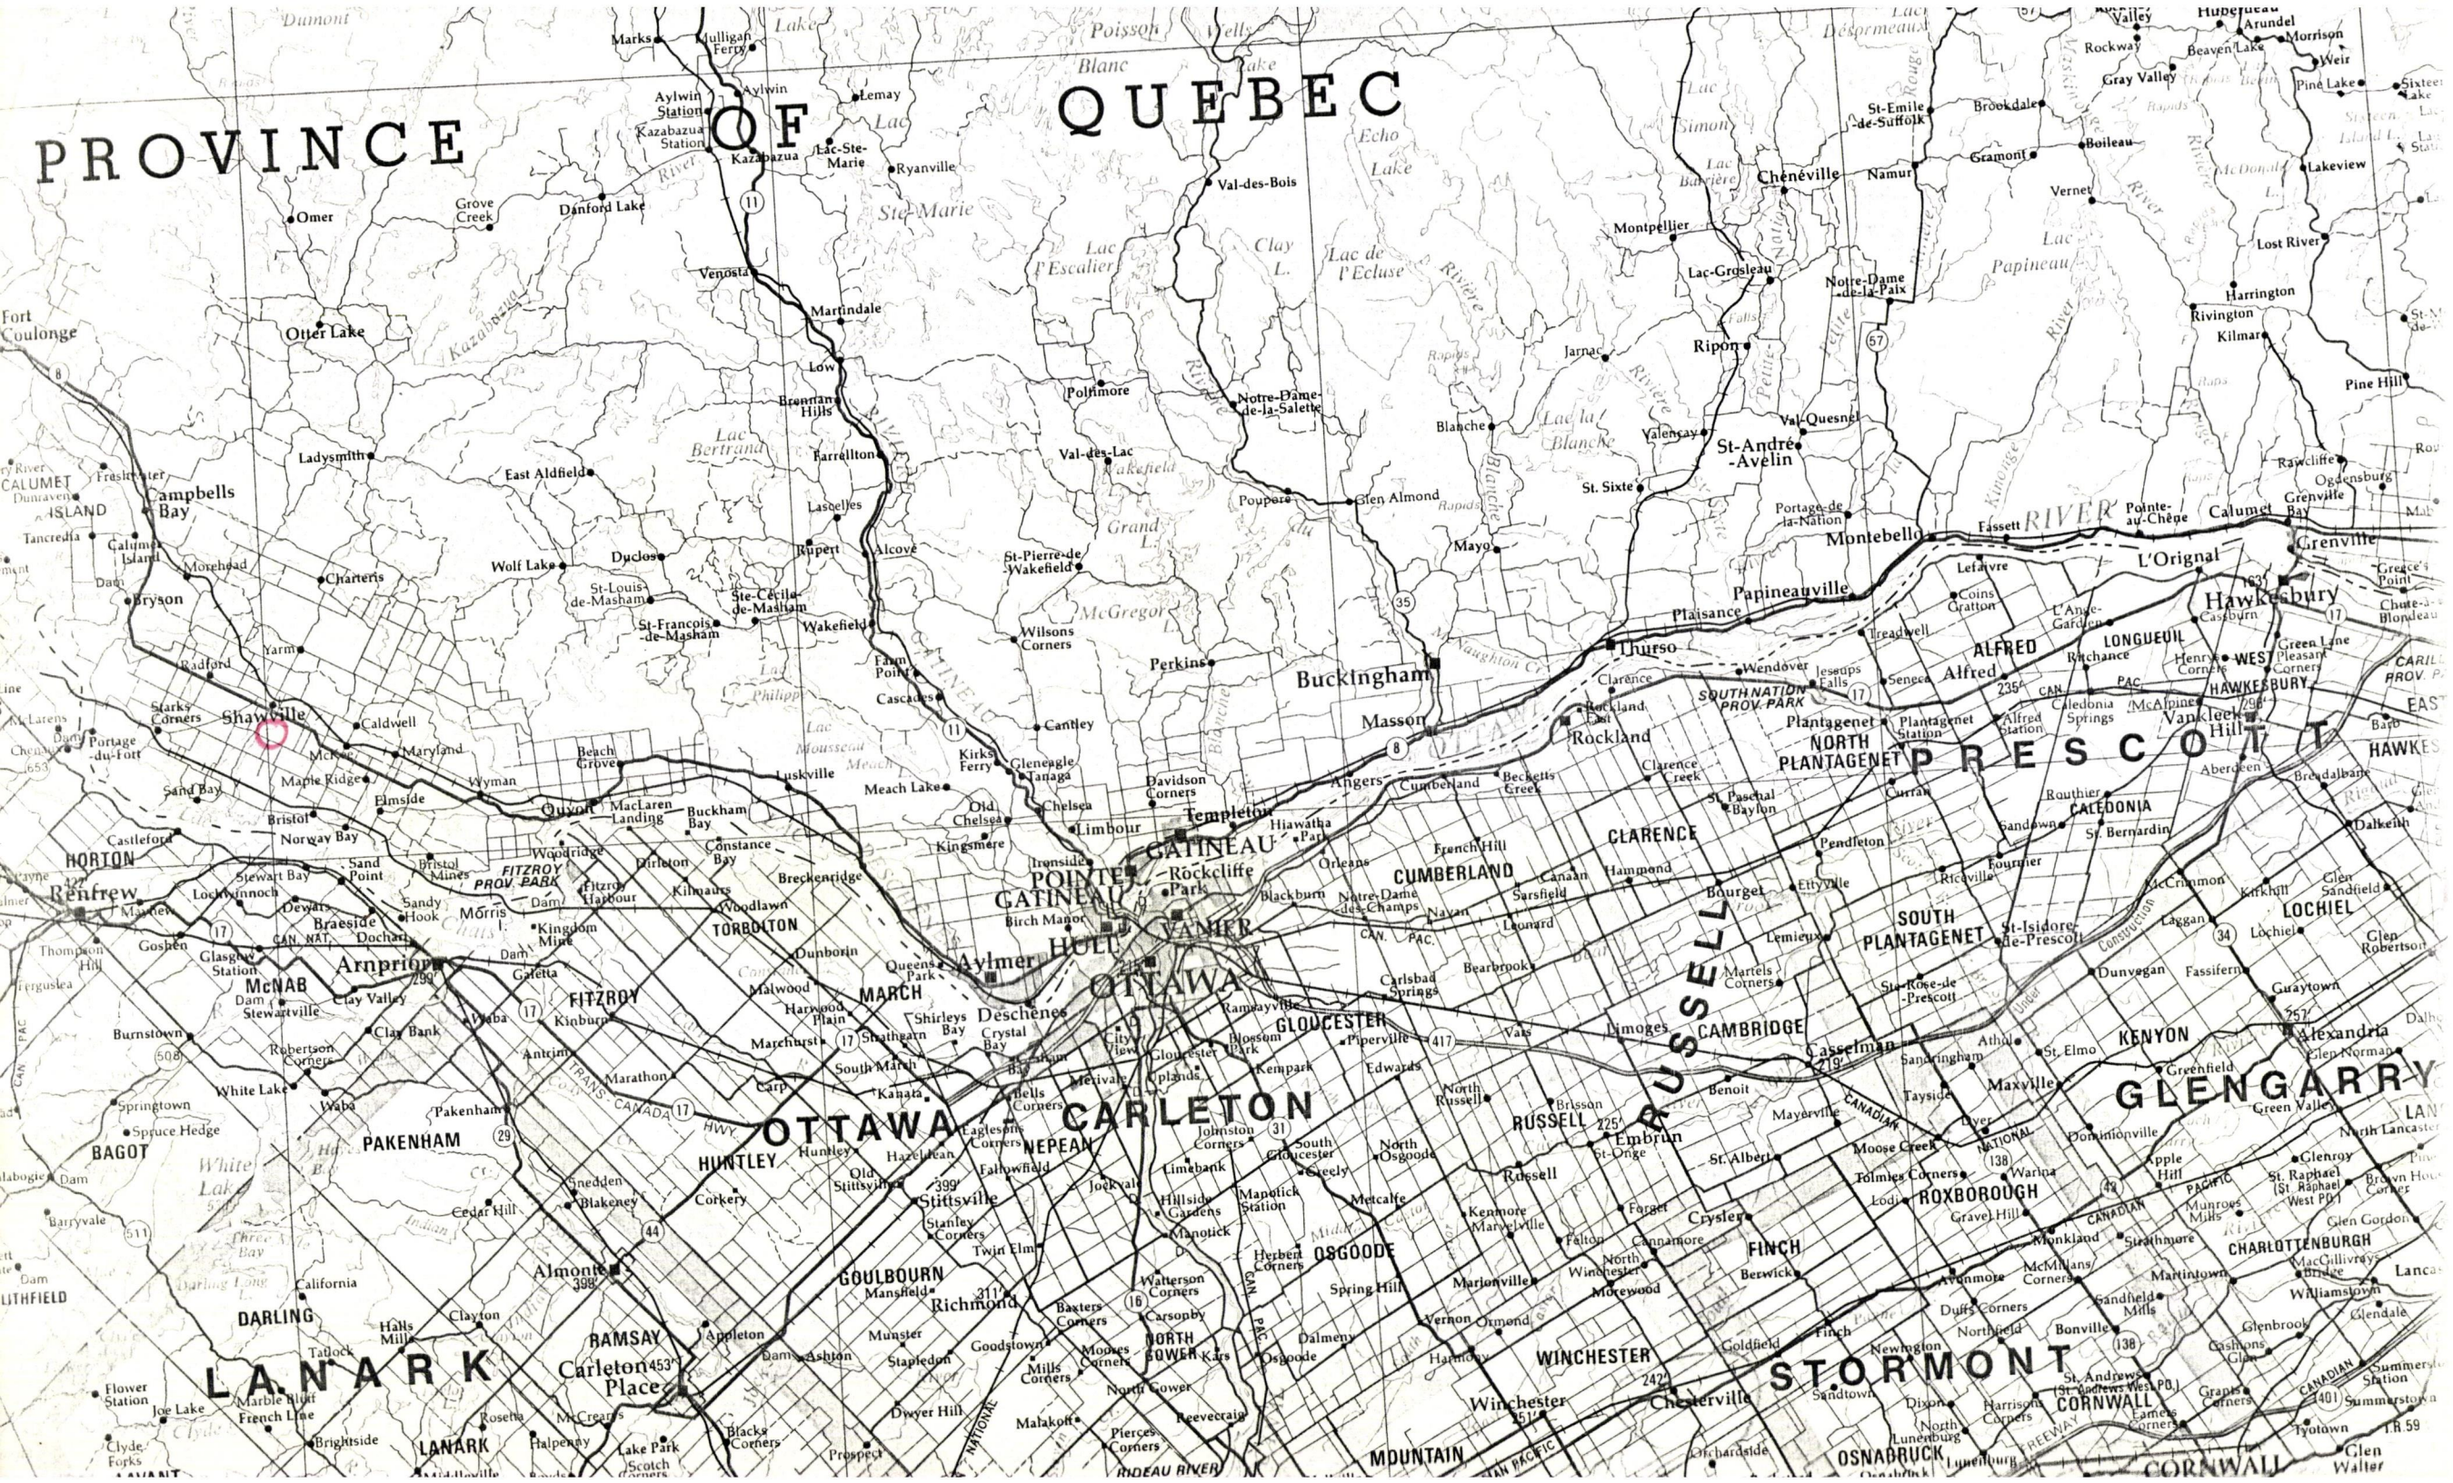

He said his daughter had climbed into the family car to close the windows when she saw storm clouds gathering. The winds came up suddenly hurling part of a barn roof and huge beams about 76 metres, burying the car in debris.

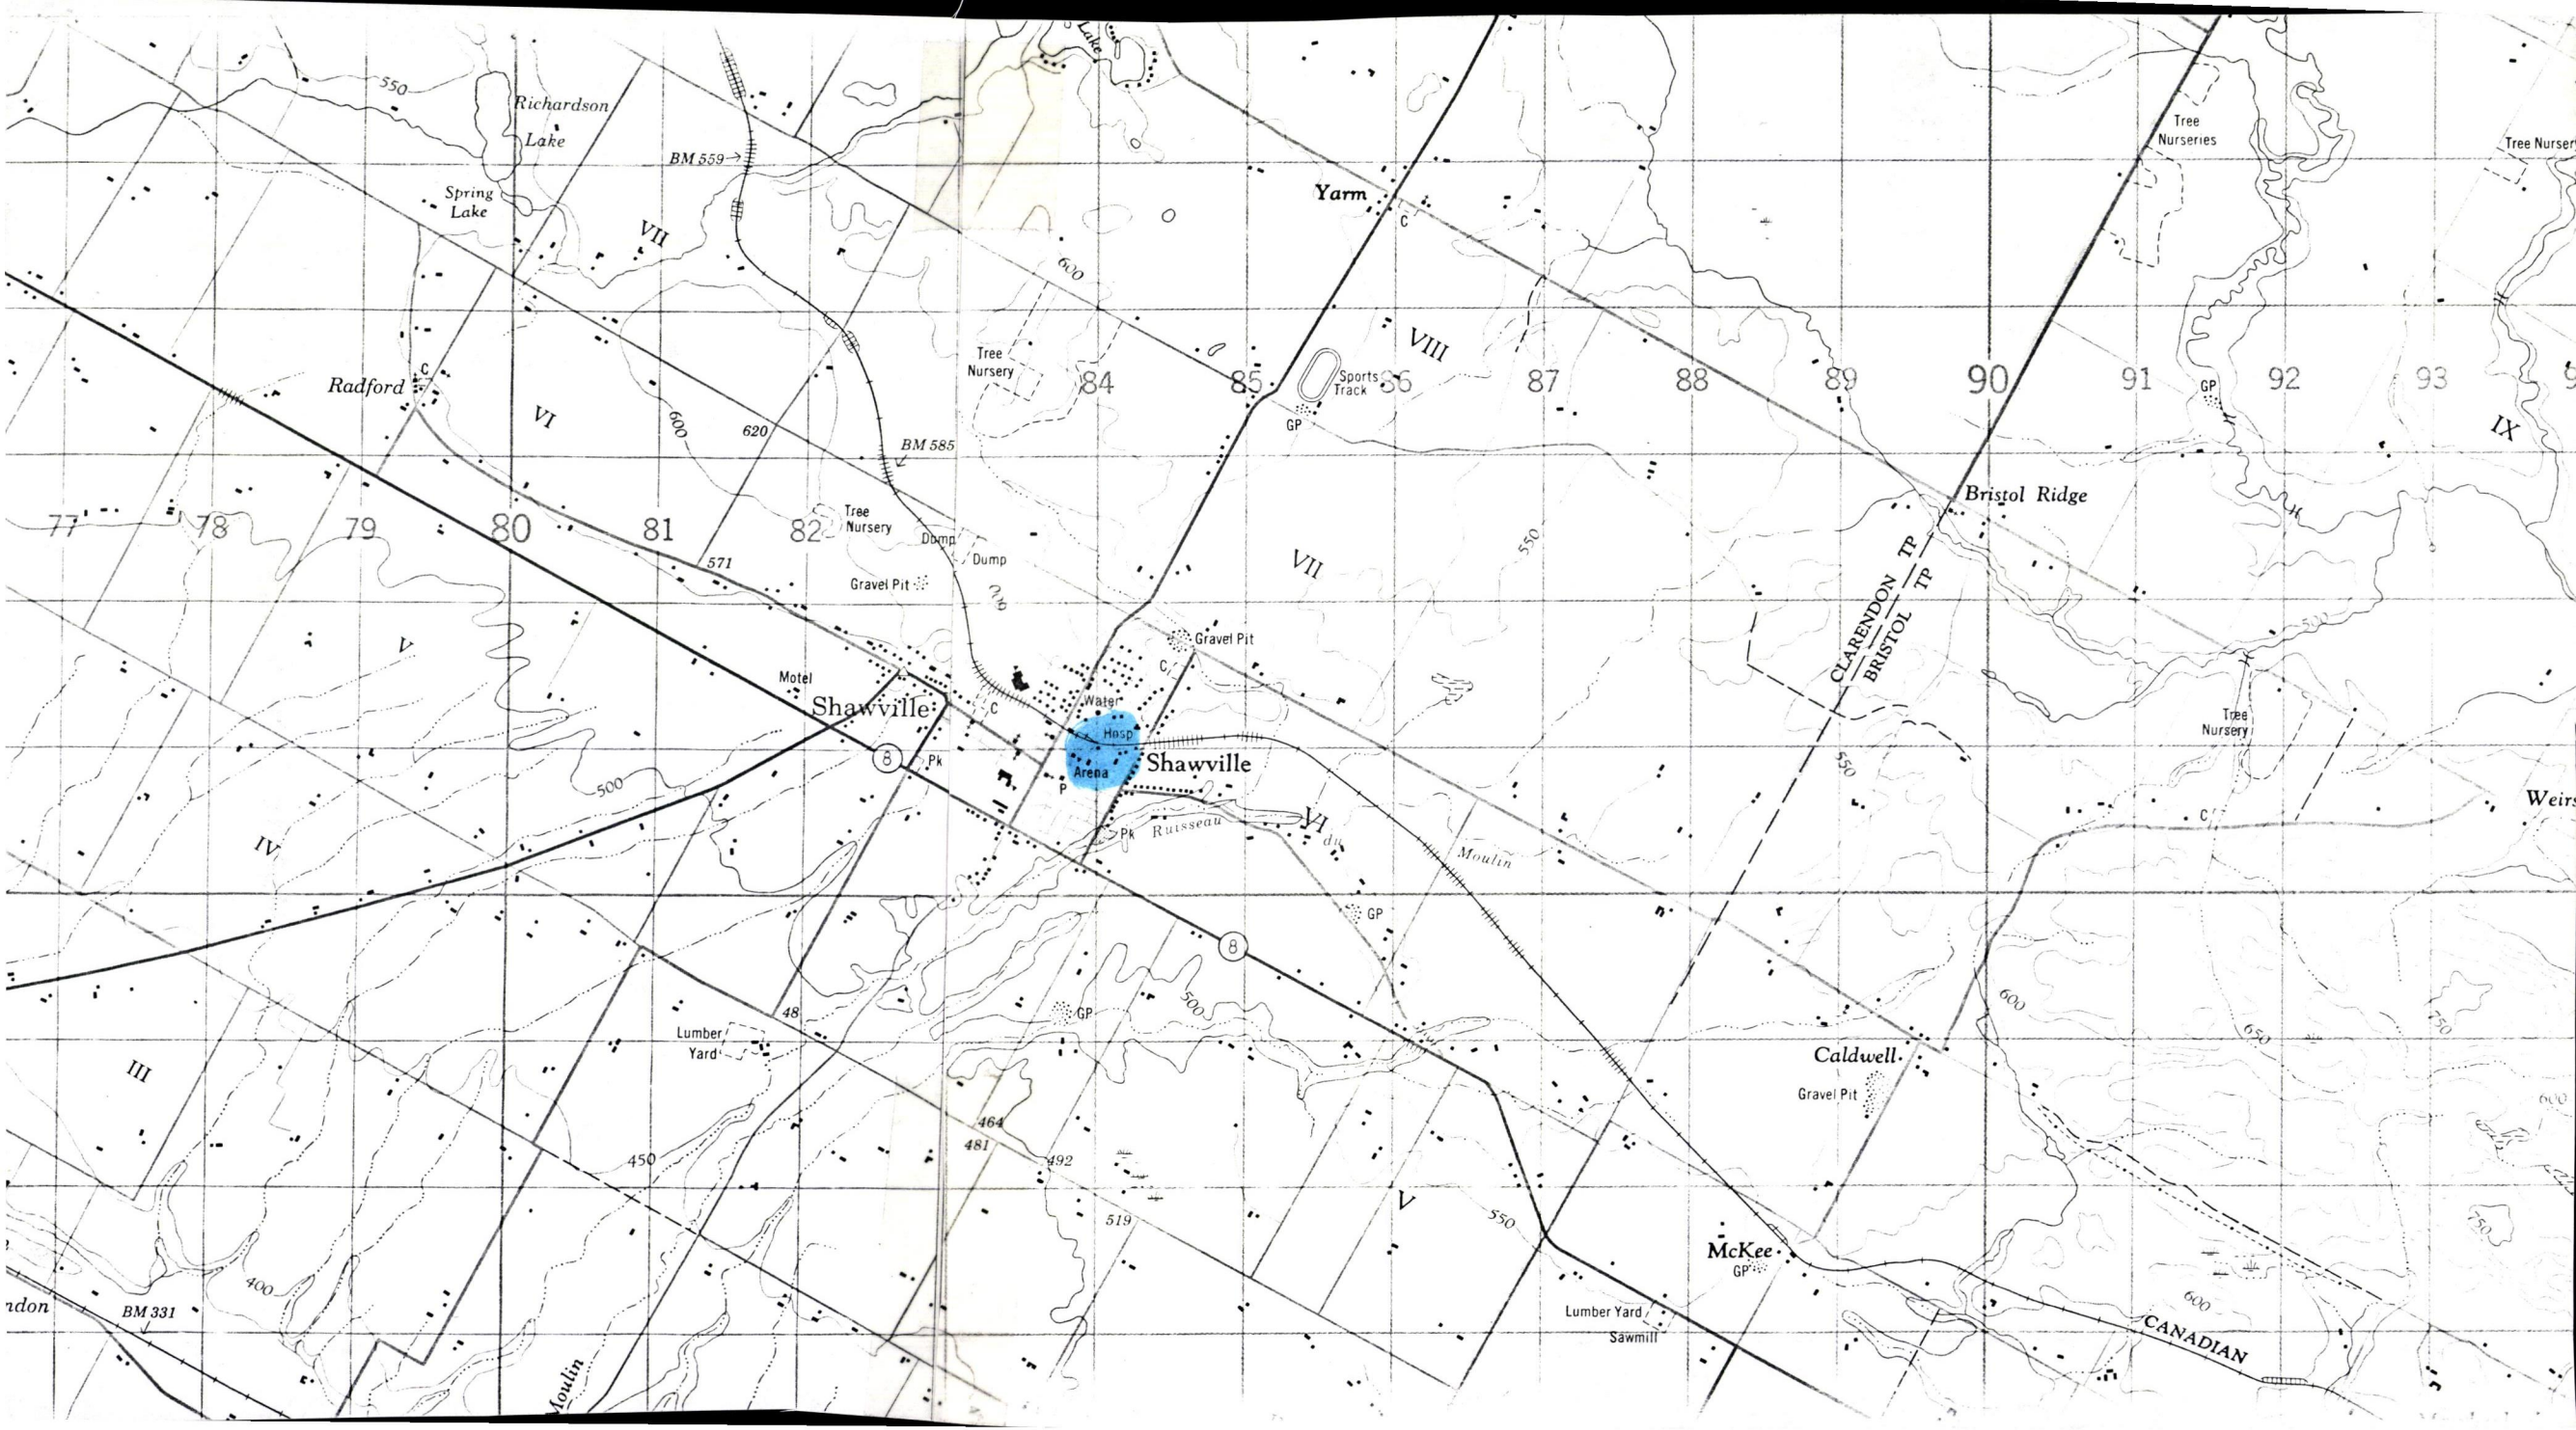

"I was out in the garden when the winds came up," Charbonneau said. "I started to head for the house when I saw the car buried under the wood from the barn roof.

"We dug her out, she was screaming, but other than that she wasn't hurt. The car roof was bashed in and the front window was cracked to pieces."

Charbonneau said he kept his daughter home from school today with a case of laryngitis.

"She was so scared she couldn't speak for a while afterwards, but today she's okay," he said. "All our power's out and the landlord's barn is completely demolished, but at least we're all alive."
